

CASE STUDY: Executive Protection

OVERVIEW

A high-profile client located in one of the most dangerous countries in the world required a tailored security detail for the family. The client requires these services on a round-the-clock basis, with particular focus on when they are in public.

CHALLENGES & SOLUTIONS

During a public outing, ROWAN Security operatives identified two suspicious groups of armed men and an individual that appeared to be following the protective detail along their route.

Due to the quick thinking of the ROWAN team, and their extensive experience both in the U.S. Special Forces and conducting similar protective details, we were able to immediately recognize the threat and abort the planned outing.

The ROWAN team quickly moved the clients to an alternative exit, safely evacuating them from the potentially dangerous encounter and defusing the situation without incident.

Executive protection details often require quick thinking and the ability to adapt to fast-changing situations. At ROWAN, we pride ourselves on providing flexible, scalable protection solutions designed to meet the needs of the client at every stage of a protective detail.

Our team utilizes decades of experience across the government, U.S. Special Forces and private protective services to produce tailored protective plans for high-profile clients with an enhanced exposure to risk.

AT A GLANCE

- Executive Protection
- Intelligence
- Risk Assessment
- International Security

“Effective executive protection is not just about physical safety; it’s about creating an environment of trust and confidence that allows leaders to focus on their mission, knowing they are secure from threats.”

Mike Reynolds

Director of Business Development, ROWAN